

Garden Plants for Blending

- Black Bugleweed (Ajuga 'Black Scallop'): A dark-leaved ajuga that spreads in shade to create a dark mat of foliage. Its spring flowers are purple.
- Silver sage (Artemisia 'Powis Castle'): Fine, feathery, silvery leaves cover this sun-loving, shrubby perennial throughout the growing season.
- Cosmos (Cosmos bipinnatus): Pretty daisies of white, pink, or rose-purple cover the annual cosmos through the warm growing months. There are many varieties that may be short or double-flowered.
- Chocolate Ruffles Alumroot (Heuchera 'Chocolate Ruffles'): Dark, ruffled leaves cover this shade-loving perennial from spring to fall.
- Catmint (Nepeta species and hybrids): A fragrant, ever-blooming perennial in the mint family with lavender to lavender-blue flowers.
- Impatiens (Impatiens walleriana): These classic, everblooming annuals for shade come in all colors from white to red, pink, purple, orange, and salmon.
- Lambs' ear (Stachys byzantina): Soft, felty leaves of silver adorn this low-growing perennial. Spires of lavender-pink flowers appear in early summer. The leaves may be semi-evergreen in mild climates.
- Sky Pencil holly (Ilex crenata 'Sky Pencil'): A small-leaved, evergreen shrub that is very linear and column-like.
